

IPVS NEWSLETTER

WHAT'S NEW IN IPVS?

JULY 2021

Message from the President of IPVS

Prof. Margaret Stanley

I am delighted to introduce the revamped IPVS newsletter, which will be sent to all IPVS members every quarter. We have organised it around sections for an easy access to information.

Since our last newsletter in April, IPVS has successfully delivered 3 educational webinars, both international and regional ones, which all had a high attendance.

With up to 400 participants per webinar, we have also seen incredible interactions. The Education Committee will continue with our monthly webinars and will bring in new interesting topics.

We have added a functionality on IPVS website for donations. Those are welcomed to support various projects that IPVS is leading in pursuing its mission to contribute to the prevention, control and eventual elimination of papillomavirus-related diseases.

I wish everyone a beautiful summer and I hope you will enjoy this new format of our newsletter. If you have content suggestions, please do not hesitate to write to the IPVS Office at ipvsoffice@kenes.com

IPVS Education

Make sure you don't miss our upcoming webinars and our new initiatives

Secure your virtual seat for the next IPVS free educational webinar which will cover questions such as:

- · When do we need a triage strategy after an HPV test?
- · What are the best parameters for a triage strategy?
- Are the strategies for LMIC different from those of HIC?

With the 25-minute live Q&A session, you will have the opportunity to ask all your questions to the experts.

Register now >>

Teach to your local community

IPVS partnered with the Catalan Institute of Oncology (ICO) to provide online learning modules for free to IPVS members. The e-oncologia platform serves as a training tool that IPVS members can then use for their local or regional community.

As an IPVS member you are encouraged to become a module tutor and form a group in your institution/hospital to which you will then be able to teach.

Course available: Cervical cancer prevention

IPVS Bank of slides

The Education Committee is working on many new projects. One of them is around developing the IPVS Bank of slides that IPVS members will be able to use in presentations. The first part of the project is «Your best slide ever!».

Members of IPVS are invited to submit their most important or must-have slide on a topic they believe is important.

Slide submission deadline: 15th July

You think that you have a slide that would fit in the IPVS best slide collection?

Find out more >>

Members only

Find out more >>

IPVC 2021

Don't miss the most important news and dates around the conference

IPVC 2021 will be held fully virtually from November 15-19, with more live and interactive sessions but also more opportunities to connect with colleagues and speakers and ask your questions. The program-at-a-glance has been released. Have a look at it! Also, late-breaking abstract submission will open soon. You can already start preparing your abstract.

If you have not registered yet, sign up this summer to enjoy the early bird rates.

Registration fees have been significantly reduced this year.

Visit the IPVC 2021 website >>

IPVS Advocacy Campaign

Access the latest IHAD Campaign news

Campaign 2021 Report is available

In April, we shared a few highlights from the 4th annual International HPV Awareness Day (IHAD) Campaign, which has been the most successful campaign since IPVS began this global initiative in 2018. Today, the IPVS Campaign Committee is pleased to release the full International HPV Awareness Day Campaign 2021 Report to IPVS members, including a number of spotlights on the activities in specific countries, and reflection about effective methods to increase impact every year.

The Campaign Committee would like to express its sincere appreciation to IPVS members who helped this campaign to be the best yet. Whether it has been by simply sharing campaign posts on social media or through working intensively to implement the campaign in your community, it all adds up and matters. Thank you!